Organizational History:
The American Association of University Women (AAUW) is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to education, cultural opportunities, and self-development for women.

Founded in Boston, Massachusetts, in 1882 as the Association of Collegiate Alumnae (ACA) by sixty-five female college graduates, it merged with the Southern Association of College Women (est. 1903) in March 1921 to form the American Association of University Women (AAUW).

Initially established for women only, the AAUW extended membership to male college graduates in June 1987. AAUW expanded their membership again in June 2005 to include graduates who hold an associate or equivalent degree.

Most members affiliate with a local branch. The Greenville Branch of AAUW was organized December 1, 1919 with 24 charter members.
